

A close-up photograph of a person's hands holding several small, reddish-brown, textured objects. The objects have a pebbled or woven appearance and are held in the palms of the hands. The background is a neutral, light gray color.

With a keen and careful eye, aiming to strengthen the best of Brazilian craftsmanship and design, CASA BONITA has developed with communities of artisans and renowned designers a range of exclusive products. With the objective of collaborating with the continuity of traditional knowledge in various regions of Brazil and guaranteeing an important increase in income for artisans, we created a connection between the producer and the sophisticated decoration and architecture market. Our objects have enchanted the Brazilian consumer, and the country's main architects. In the careful product management, Casa Bonita goes further in the qualification of the Brazilian artisans. More than manufacturing excellence, the artisans are trained in cost formation, logistics, packaging, and fiscal management.

Buriti and Japiim Collections

Sérgio Mattos

Culture is essential raw material.

More than function, design has the power to hold history, memory, and affective ties.

From this perception that the designer from Mato Grosso, Sérgio Matos, 41, draws his inspiration for the development of furniture and decoration products. Every creation is referenced in Brazilian culture.

Inspirations drawn from identity, memory, and tradition that have stood the test of time.

In utilitarian and decorative pieces reside the trace of regionality materialized through handcrafted techniques. The creative aesthetic condenses narratives mined in the landscape, in folkloric manifestations, in the territory of the open fairs, in the sacred and profane rites of popular celebrations. The originality contrasts with the technological universe of mass production and opens routes to the rescue of the unique piece that radiates heritage value

Outside the studio, creation follows the course of consultancies directed to artisan communities, where in the most distant places experiences sprout, strengthened by the exchange of knowledge. The fusion of design and craftsmanship establishes a formula that safeguards belonging, the knowledge inherited from the ancestors, and the appreciation of the raw materials of the surroundings.

The Buriti and Japiim collections are part of this creative process together with the indigenous and ribeirinhas (riverside) communities of Amazonas.

The carnauba straw braided lamps by Evanilce de Souza, known as Nequinha, enchant for their sinuous shapes that escape pre-established patterns. With skillful and light hands, her imagination goes far, and more and more elaborate models emerge.

Nequinha lives in a region in the Vale do Jaguaribe where the carnauba, a tree from the palm family, is abundant. It was in 2018 during the workshops of Museu A Casa in the communities of the sertão of Ceará that she emerged. The more different she made her work the happier she was.

Nequinha

And so, in this genuine joy of who knows how to give new air to ancestral knowledge that the carnauba straw lamps and baskets won a signature and an award! In 2020 the artisan won the 7th edition of the Museu A CASA Award Brazilian Object in the category

Authorial Production.

It was right after the Carnaúba exhibition that the designer and journalist specialized in architecture and decoration, Zizi Carderari, got to know her work and they made the partnership. We call these partnerships between artisans and designers an exchange of knowledge.

A certainty of success when craftsmanship and design go together.
